 Foundation For Parkinson's
every victory counts

"It's hard to live under the weight of Parkinson's day in and day out. One of the most important things is to feel inspired and have a feeling of hope. So I focus on how I can improve the quality of my life, so I can feel better today."
 -Davis Phinney

Keynote Speaker:
Davis Phinney

“Celebrate Daily Victories”

Davis Phinney is a world champion in two arenas: cycling, and in the fight against Parkinson's disease (PD). The first defined his career; the second is defining his life.

Diagnosed with early-onset PD in 2000, he took on his mission to live with the disease with the same passion and energy that helped him win an Olympic medal. Come hear this former champion cyclist talk about his experience with Parkinson's disease and how his specific treatment has enabled him to build a new life for himself—a life celebrating daily victories.

Speakers:
David Charles, MD

Dr. Charles is Associate Professor and Vice-Chairman of Neurology for Education and Development and is Assistant Dean for Admissions at Vanderbilt University School of Medicine. He is the Director of the Neurology Residency Program and the Movement Disorders Clinic and serves as an attending physician at Vanderbilt University Medical Center.

Diane S. Huss, PT, MSED, NCS

Ms. Huss is a physical therapist consultant in the Department of Neurosurgery and Neurology of the University of Virginia Health System. She is also the Home Health Program Manager for UVA HealthSouth, and Rehabilitation Services Coordinator at Continuum Home Health.
